FOREWORD

THE publication of a Directory of Psychiatric Clinics for Children is incidental to a periodic inventory of developments in that field. In 1920 clinics specifically designed for such service were so rare that no directory was needed. Within four years of the initiation of the Commonwealth Fund's sponsoring of the child guidance movement, clinics had become sufficiently established to warrant a survey of their occurrence. The first edition of the directory (1925) was based on such a survey. Again three years later, growth had been so rapid that the first edition was no longer of value. Not only were more child guidance clinics in existence but many general clinics had begun to emphasize the children's side of mental hygiene work. Separate days were often set aside for children and arrangements were made with other clinical departments and with outside agencies to cooperate on children's service.

The second edition (revised, 1928) showed a marked expansion. The great increase in small projects, some of which were ephemeral or on paper only, made it difficult to state the service without being misleading. It became necessary to define our terms more exactly. For purposes of classification, a "psychiatric clinic" was defined as one which had a psychiatrist in attendance, and clinics having a psychiatrist on call were omitted from the directory. Again, a number of institutions having no regular hours for outpatient service were excluded.

In the last three years the expansion of psychiatric work with children has been such that a third edition of the directory of psychiatric clinics has become necessary. For this edition a greater effort than ever before was made to include all psychiatric services for children, and to this end, an appeal for data was made to all known public clinics, state societies for mental hygiene, members of the American Psychiatric Association, state departments concerned with hospitals for mental diseases, and a number of other special sources such as universities. No attempt was made to survey the field of private clinics. Information concerning private psychiatric service may be obtained from the American Psychiatric Association or the National Committee for Mental Hygiene. There is reason to believe that the 1932 directory is practically complete; not only clinics designated as psychiatric, but also those designated as neurological, were studied to determine whether they in reality offered psychiatric service. The survey has revealed a few clinics which give psychiatric service to adults only. It was considered advisable to include these rather than to publish an appendix. On the other hand, much useful data had to be omitted in order to keep the directory within practical limits.

In order to distinguish readily the kinds of service offered by the clinics, clinics for children have been marked with an asterisk (*) and those serving adults with a dagger (†). Clinics which are not marked serve both children and adults.

In preparing the material for publication it was found that there is a group of clinics which exist, but which function on no definite schedule. They are held "occasionally," and are usually extramural services of a state hospital for mental diseases. Such clinics are listed by states under the initial head "State Activities" with cross references in the section "Community Clinics," which is arranged by cities.

The preparation of the new edition was the work of the whole Division on Community Clinics of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene.

In compiling the directory there has been no attempt to make a study of methods or to give an appraisal of work done. The information given is a condensation of data sent by each clinic in response to a questionnaire. The directory is, therefore, not to be regarded in any sense as an accredited list of such organizations, and no endorsement of a particular clinic is implied by its inclusion.

In presenting the information concerning each clinic an attempt has been made to list under the term "Director" or "Psychiatrist" the chief examining psychiatrist in charge of the clinical examinations. While there is definite value in stating the intake of a clinic, in many instances the number of new cases studied during the year does not give an adequate indication of the volume of work handled by the clinic. This is especially true of clinics conducted under the auspices of state hospitals, which, in addition to the examination of new cases referred from the community, supervise a large number of paroled patients who regularly visit the clinic.

An attempt has been made to indicate whether the workers available in the clinics are on full time or part time. In the great majority of clinics the examiners are in attendance at the clinic only at stated intervals. A fairly large number of clinics, however, have full-time staffs; in such cases it is so indicated. Where not stated the staff functions part time. In most clinics the examination of patients is made only by appointment, and application for appointment should be made through the address given.

As in previous editions a short statement describing mental hygiene activities now being conducted through departments, institutions, or agencies of the state government, has been included under each state. The names and addresses of state institutions for the care of the mentally sick, the feeble-minded, and epileptic are listed, as in most states the services of staffs of such institutions are available upon request for the examination of children at the hospitals and in some instances clinics are held in local communities not otherwise served. Reference has also been made to the names, addresses, and chief activities of state and local mental hygiene societies wherever such organizations exist.

The compilation of the material was completed in July, 1931, though whenever later changes became known, revisions were made. All the statements printed were submitted to the directors of clinics, heads of state departments, or other appropriate officers, for their official approval prior to publication, although some editorial revision has been subsequently necessary. In spite of these precautions it is altogether likely that omissions and errors will be noted: any corrections or suggestions which will enhance the accuracy and practical usefulness of the book will be appreciated.

The work of gathering the information for the directory has manifestly depended upon the cooperation of many individuals. This has been given generously and painstakingly, and the Commonwealth Fund joins with the National Committee for Mental Hygiene in expressing hearty thanks to all who have helped.

Various problems naturally arise whenever a community undertakes the development of child guidance work. It therefore seems appropriate in this connection to call attention to the consultation and field service of the Division on Community Clinics of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene maintained under appropriation from the Commonwealth Fund. This Division may be consulted on the organization of local clinics and child guidance programs, in the determination as to what community resources should precede the establishment of clinics, in the correlation of child guidance effort with other social and medical agencies, and in the selection of staffs and their initial work. It serves as a medium of exchange for information between those at work in the various communities. It also offers vocational advice to those who wish to prepare for child guidance work. Concerning the services of the Division, correspondence should be addressed to the Director, 450 Seventh Avenue, New York City.

A further service relative to the work of clinics may also be mentioned. The generally recognized desirability of comparable records and statistics led to an effort in this direction by the staffs of the clinics operating under the Commonwealth Fund demonstration program. This work was under the supervision of Mary Augusta Clark, research statistician of the former Joint Committee on Methods of Preventing Delinquency, and now of the Commonwealth Fund. Advisory statistical service has been given not only to the demonstration clinics but also to the resulting permanent clinics in the various communities. Other clinics as well have shown interest in this work and have sought counsel and help, which is given to the extent permitted by Miss Clark's other duties. Recording and Reporting for Child Guidance Clinics, by Miss Clark (published by the Commonwealth Fund in 1930), represents the accumulation of tried statistical methods of child guidance clinics and is recognized as the standard guide in this field.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

MENTAL HYGIENE ACTIVITIES

THE Division of Mental Hygiene, Assistant Surgeon General Walter L. Treadway, Chief, Bureau of Public Health Service, United States Treasury Department, Washington, D.C., is charged with the study of drug addiction and with the administration of United States Narcotic Farms for the treatment of drug addicts.

Congress has recently authorized an institution for the care of defective delinquents, which will come under the supervision of the Public Health Service.

This division is also charged with the furnishing and supervision of mental and psychiatric service in federal prisons. A clinic for an adequate medical and psychiatric service has been established at the following institutions: U.S. Penitentiary, Atlanta, Georgia; U.S. Penitentiary, Leavenworth, Kansas; U.S. Penitentiary Annex, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas; Federal Industrial Institution for Women, Alderson, West Virginia; U.S. Industrial Reformatory, Chillicothe, Ohio.

The Children's Bureau, Grace Abbot, Chief, 20th and B Streets, Washington, D.C., United States Department of Labor, conducts a Child Hygiene Division. The chief activities of the division in the field of mental health have been in the form of reports and popular bulletins, for example, the publication of a report on "Habit Clinics for the Child of Pre-School Age: Their Organization and Practical Value" and of the popular bulletins, "Child Management" and "Are You Training Your Child To Be Happy?" A new bulletin now in press, "The Child from One to Six: His Care and Training," emphasizes throughout the mental as well as the physical aspects of child health by stressing habit formation and the attitude of parents toward the development of the child. The popular bulletin, "Infant Care," also gives special attention to the formation of habits.

The Division of Special Problems, Mrs. Katherine M. Cook, Chief, Office of Education, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C., was organized in 1930 to provide advisory service concerning the education of exceptional children of all types. Upon request, assistance is given to school systems in planning for the education of children who are mentally, physically, or emotionally of exceptional type.

The Government Hospital for the Insane, or St. Elizabeth's Hospital, William A. White, M.D., Superintendent, Nichols Avenue, S.E., Washington, D.C., cares for the insane of the District of Columbia, the insane of the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps, the United States Public Health Service beneficiaries, and several other beneficiaries authorized in the law. Residents of the District of Columbia are admitted to St. Elizabeth's Hospital after due process of law. The hospital also maintains a department for the care of the criminal insane who have committed offenses against the United States.

The Surgeon General of the Army, Major General Robert U. Patterson, War Department, Munitions Building, 21st Street and Constitution Avenue, Washington, D.C., has under his jurisdiction the medical care of officers and enlisted personnel, including recognition and exclusion from enlistment of mentally disabled recruits, medical survey, temporary care, transfer, retirement, and discharge of those suffering from mental disorders, and the operation of clearing, observation, and diagnostic medical centers.

The following hospitals, operated by the War Department under the direction of the Surgeon General of the Army, have definitely organized neuropsychiatric services:

The United States Veterans' Bureau is responsible for the medical treatment, disability compensation, disability allowance, insurance, adjusted compensation, and emergency officers' retirement pay for World War veterans, with the exception of medical treatment which is furnished veterans of all wars under certain specified conditions. The United States Veterans' Bureau is organized into a Central Office in Washington, D.C., with field stations located in the various states. These field stations are regional offices, hospitals, or combined facilities embracing both regional office and hospital functions. Examination to determine need for treatment and the determination as to the eligibility of a veteran to treatment in government hospitals must be made by the Regional Office in the territory in which the veteran resides. Honorably discharged veterans of the World War, with service connected disabilities, are entitled to medical treatment for such disabilities.

DIVISION OF THE CRIMINOLOGIST

The Division of the Criminologist, of the Department of Public Welfare, is under the direction of the State Criminologist, Paul L. Schroeder, M.D., 907 South Lincoln Street, Chicago. The work of this division has developed along two main lines, that which is carried on in connection with the state penal and correctional institutions, and a program of prevention conducted through the organization and staff of the Institute for Juvenile Research.

The State Criminologist, who is a psychiatrist, carries on his work with the state penal and correctional institutions in an advisory capacity. Resident psychiatrists are now located in the Illinois State Penitentiary at Joliet, the Illinois State Reformatory at Pontiac, the State School for Boys at St. Charles, and the State Training School for Girls at Geneva. A psychologist divides his time between the two penal institutions at Pontiac and Menard. Resident psychologists are attached to the Illinois State Penitentiary at Joliet, the St. Charles School for Boys at St. Charles, and the State Training School for Girls at Geneva. The Southern Illinois Penitentiary and Chester State Hospital for the Insane Criminals are served by the staff of the Institute for Juvenile Research.

The Institute for Juvenile Research, 907 South Lincoln Street, Chicago, represents the preventive phase of the work of the Division of the Criminologist of the State Department of Public Welfare. The work of the Institute deals with the study and treatment of the behavior disorders of children. An attempt is made, through multiple examinations by various specialists, to obtain an understanding of the total situation. Recommendations are then jointly arrived at through conferences of the examiners. Children from any part of the state may be sent to the clinic headquarters at Chicago for examination and diagnosis.

About 900 new cases of problem children were examined at the Institute headquarters during the past year. The social service department of the Institute receives a certain number of children's cases for clinic treatment, accepting full responsibility for the conduct of the case over an unlimited period of time, but the majority of its cases are handled in cooperation with other agencies which assume the responsibility of carrying out the treatment recommended by the Institute under its advisory supervision. Certain cases are selected by the Institute staff for research investigation and treatment.

In addition to the clinical work done at the Institute headquarters, branch and extension services are conducted in cooperation with other institutions and agencies. A branch clinic, operated at the Juvenile Detention Home of the Cook County Juvenile Court, Chicago, offers advisory and full study service on selected cases going through the court. The Institute also furnishes psychiatric service to The Oaks, a school established under the auspices of the Juvenile Court for the training of educable borderline defectives, and to the Illinois Soldiers' Orphans' Home. A preschool department of the Institute gives service to four nursery schools in the city. This department conducts clinical, educational, and research work with preschool children in cooperation with the Mary Crane Nursery School, Hull House, the Franklin Nursery School, Franklin Public School, and the Winnetka Nursery School, Skokie Public School, Winnetka, and operates preschool behavior clinics in the Mary Crane and the Seward Park Infant Welfare Stations.

Since 1926, the Institute has also conducted diagnostic, therapeutic, educational, and research activities in three neighborhoods in Chicago, at the Lower North Child Guidance Center, 1120 North Clark Street, and the South Side Child Guidance Center, 1328 East 55th Street.

The Institute provides supplementary psychiatric services regularly to the student counseling departments of three schools, the LaSalle-Peru Township High School, LaSalle, the Winnetka Department of Educational Counsel, Winnetka, and the Decatur High School, Decatur.

In 1921, a state-wide program for the development of permanent extension clinics held by the Institute staff at varying intervals of time in the various towns and cities of the state was begun. During the past year 25 such clinics were held in 10 local communities of the state, where the Institute staff worked in cooperation with the local welfare organizations. With the clinical program goes a general educational program emphasizing principles and methods of mental hygiene.

Two- or three-day clinics are held occasionally by staff from the Institute consisting of 1 psychiatrist, 1 psychologist, and 1 psychiatric social worker at the following cities:

Aurora: Child Guidance Clinic, Lincoln Building.
Bloomington: Child Guidance Clinic, Horatio Bent Public School.
Champaign: Champaign-Urbana Child Guidance Clinic, University Y.M.C.A.
Decatur: Child Guidance Clinic, Decatur High School.
Elgin: Child Guidance Clinic, Offices of Public Health Association.
Joliet: Child Guidance Clinic, Public Library.
LaSalle: Bureau of Educational Counsel, LaSalle-Peru Township High School; Tri-City Child Guidance Clinic, Merchants Building.
Springfield: Child Guidance Clinic, 318 Unity Building.

The Institute serves as an educational center for the training of psychiatrists, psychologists, and psychiatric social workers. Educational work is conducted by the Institute with workers of cooperating agencies, postgraduate nurses from the Illinois State Training School for Psychiatric Nurses, and with undergraduates of various colleges and universities. Lectures and publications constitute part of the educational program of the Institute. Additional work of an educational nature is done by the Institute through its weekly staff meetings. These meetings are thrown open to the professional group and serve as centers of discussion and interpretation of the mental problems of childhood.

In addition to the psychological examination of all children referred to the Institute as behavior problems, special psychological, educational, and vocational studies are made of children in cooperation with the Vocational Supervision League, the Pediatric Department of the University of Illinois, the Spaulding School for Crippled Children, the Better Baby Conferences, etc. Educational and vocational study and guidance are also furnished to parents and others interested in individual children. Group and individual tests are given in schools and institutions of the state on request.

The recreational work of the Institute includes the study of recreation as a therapeutic agent in mental cases, a detailed knowledge of recreational resources in Chicago, advisory service as to neighborhood recreational resources, the recreational study of Institute cases, the formulation of individual recreational programs, the organization of outings, advice as to recreational equipment, opportunities for individual instruction in recreational and cultural interests, reading guidance, and camp placement.

Research activities in the several sciences contributing to an understanding of human behavior are carried on at the Institute through two means. During the past year three research projects related to psychiatric aspects of the work, five to the psychological, three to recreational, and one or two statistical studies were carried on under state funds. Under the Behavior Research Fund, a private fund raised in the community and put at the disposal of the Institute for a five-year research program, studies in psychological research, in problems of the human constitution, in physiological, preschool, linguistic, and sociological problems were carried forward.

DIVISION OF THE ALIENIST

A State Psychopathic Institute, Sidney D. Wilgus, M.D., State Alienist, Director, located at the Elgin State Hospital, 750 South State Street, Elgin, is conducted by the State Department of Public Welfare. This Institute offers diagnostic service to the state institutions.

The Chief of Social Service in Institutions, Mrs. Margaret M. Platner, under the direction of the State Alienist, with offices in the Institute for Juvenile Research, 907 South Lincoln Street, Chicago, provides general supervision and correlation of the work of social service departments in state hospitals.

The Illinois State School of Psychiatric Nursing, under the direction of May Kennedy, R.N., 6500 Irving Park Boulevard, Chicago, has also been developed in the State Department of Public Welfare and provides training in psychiatry for student and graduate nurses from various training hospitals.

The Psychiatric Institute, with 60 beds when fully opened, is operated administratively by the Department of Public Welfare and officered medically by the College of Medicine. Patients are drawn from the state hospitals, the out-patient clinics, and the Psychopathic Hospital of Cook County. The purpose of the Institute includes psychiatric teaching, both graduate and undergraduate, and research, including biological and chemical problems related to psychiatry, as well as personality problems and psychoses.

MENTAL HYGIENE SOCIETIES

The Illinois Society for Mental Hygiene, Helen L. Myrick, Executive Secretary, 203 North Wabash Avenue, Chicago, founded in 1909, is a state-wide, privately supported association for the conservation of mental health.

The society organizes local mental health committees, demonstrates the value of mental hygiene in public schools, stimulates interest in a mental hygiene program in colleges, and disseminates information. An effort is being made to develop an active interest in mental hygiene as applied to industry. It studies existing conditions in institutions and clinics, and offers vocational advice in the field of mental hygiene.

A Mental Health Bulletin is issued monthly by the society.

In its administrative offices, the department has the following bureaus:

The Statistical Bureau, Horatio M. Pollock, Ph.D., Director, conducts the statistical, publicity, and exhibit work of the department. It supervises the statistical work of each institution and prepares statistical tables relative to mental disease, mental defect, and epilepsy, and the general operations of the department and the institutions. The publications prepared by the bureau include the Annual Report, the annual Handbook, the semi-annual Directory, and the Psychiatric Quarterly. Each year, the bureau in cooperation with the Bureau of Occupational Therapy conducts an elaborate exhibit at the State Fair. It also conducts occasional exhibits at scientific meetings. The Bureau of Special Examination, Spencer L. Dawes, M.D., Medical Examiner, supervises the removal of alien and non-resident patients who have no claim on the bounty of the state. The Bureau of Occupational Therapy, Mrs. Eleanor C. Slagle, Director, supervises the occupational therapy work carried on under the department.

The Supervisor of Social Work, Hester B. Crutcher, supervises and guides the social work of the department, including that of the institutions, and plans policies for its promotion and development.

An information service is carried on by the department for the purpose of informing the general public about mental hygiene, and educational activities are conducted by means of lectures, radio talks, pamphlets, and leaflets.

Mental Hygiene News, a monthly bulletin edited by Assistant Commissioner Brown, was established in October, 1930.

Clinical service. The department also conducts two classes of clinical service, namely, state hospital clinics and child guidance clinics. The state hospital clinics, which are held in about 50 cities and villages in the state, are conducted for the purpose of re-establishing paroled and discharged patients in their respective homes and communities, but the services of these clinics are always available to others in the community for examination and advice. A psychiatrist and a psychiatric social worker are in attendance on these clinics.

The child guidance clinics, which are regularly conducted in about 100 small cities and villages, deal principally with problem children, although occasionally an adult is examined. These clinics are attended by a psychiatrist and a psychologist. The recommendations made by the psychiatrist in charge of these clinics are usually carried out by local agencies. In addition to the regularly scheduled clinics, during the past year occasional child guidance clinics were held in the following towns:

Its location at the Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center brings it into a close working contact with the teaching, treatment, and research activities of the various units of the Medical Center.

The institute is organized and equipped to conduct special investigations into the causes and treatment of all varieties of mental abnormality; to provide adequate clinical facilities for teaching psychiatry to medical students and graduate physicians; to provide out-patient and hospital treatment for persons in the earliest stages of mental illness, including borderline cases, psychoneuroses, emotional and social maladjustments, and behavior disorders of childhood. In all the activities of the institute and the hospital, emphasis is placed on preventive and curative measures. Children as well as adults are admitted and treated in both the hospital and out-patient departments.
